

COLUMBIA TROUNCES RED MEN

PLAYS GOOD FOOTBALL AND WINS BY SCORE OF 40 TO 13.

Great Braces by Indians in Second Half and Twelve Points Scored in a Hurry—Morley Kicks a Goal From the Field—Long Run by Light Blue Backs.

After a stormy season of ups and downs the Columbia University football team made a swift finish on the Polo Grounds yesterday, beating the Carle Indians by a score of 40 to 13. Coach Sanford had a strong drive on the field to tackle the Redskins and the Light Blue men played fast, spirited football, piling up points so rapidly that they had the game safe beyond doubt when the Indians began scoring. Columbia's big score was no more noteworthy than the fact that the Indians made near the end of the game, when by the most vigorous sort of offensive work they made two touchdowns after everybody thought they were beaten. It was a magnificent rally on the part of the Indians and wound up a game that was the most picturesque and entertaining seen here this year, and for enlivening incidents one of the most interesting of the year anywhere. Missing with great speed and determination on Columbia's line and now and then resorting to their wing shift, which proved troublesome, the Indians first carried the ball sixty-five yards for a touchdown and a few minutes later ninety-five yards across Columbia's goal line, without losing the leather either time. It was wonderful upturn work in the face of certain defeat, and the Indians were cheered heartily for their plucky finish. However, the Columbia players had the ball so much prior to this brace and had done such extensive ground gaining that they had doubtless taxed their energies severely, romping up and down the field for touchdowns.

The main regret of Columbia adherents after the game was that their team was not able to take the field against Cornell as it did against the Indians. With a few touches in the quarter and Weekes and Smith in trim again, the Indians being something more and again by good interference for end runs which permitted the Indians to make a touchdown and a few minutes later ninety-five yards across Columbia's goal line, without losing the leather either time. However, the Columbia players had the ball so much prior to this brace and had done such extensive ground gaining that they had doubtless taxed their energies severely, romping up and down the field for touchdowns.

Few mistakes were made by Columbia. The ball was much more cleanly by the Light Blue than by Carle. Once, however, the Columbia line was a play which provoked a great shout of laughter. The two Carle tackles, who were supposed to be a bluff for a loss, in grabbing him they snatched his jersey loose and pulled it clear from his head displaying to the spectators a broad expanse of white and muscular back. "Oh, the poor man! freeze!" exclaimed a spectator.

"Not he," responded her escort. "He's playing football and football players don't mind cold weather." The restoration of Weekes's attire to the state required by the law was quickly accomplished. While it was being changed, the Indians were playing football, clear, without wind and cold, the spectators about making a bluff for a loss, in grabbing him they snatched his jersey loose and pulled it clear from his head displaying to the spectators a broad expanse of white and muscular back. "Oh, the poor man! freeze!" exclaimed a spectator.

CORNELL FINALLY TRIUMPHS.

REVENGE, LONG DEFERRED, FROM QUAKERS AT FOOTBALL.

End Runs Win for the Ithacans, and Their Roster Has Plenty of Chances to Yield—Crowd Surges Out on the Field and Delays the Game—Score, 24 to 6.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—For the first time in nine years Cornell defeated Pennsylvania at football to-day on Franklin Field. The score was 24 to 6. Nine years ago the Quakers with Cornell were begun, and Pennsylvania has always been able to pull out a victory against the Cornellians, no matter how unprosperous her season, until this year. The Ithacans to-day beat Pennsylvania all the way, with the exception of the last part of the first half, when Pennsylvania braced up and stopped Cornell's rushes. The Ithacans came here confident of winning and they did not deceive themselves. Pennsylvania played valiantly as she has done in every game, won or lost, but to no purpose. She was outplayed. It was end runs that won for Cornell. The New Yorkers skirted around the outside of the line in beautiful style, the runner carrying the ball behind interference. The Quakers were unable to break up. It was a holiday crowd on the stands and fully 20,000 persons braved the cold and the high wind to view the game.

For a time the contest was interesting, but even Philadelphia, lovers of football, know when they have had enough. Before the game came to an end and the crowd swarmed on the field, and it was necessary to clear the field before the contest could be resumed. This is a thing that a crowd has never done before at Franklin Field and it was totally unlooked for. However, the day was a very cold one, and the game had grown into more or less of a farce. The Quakers had learned that McGovern had been knocked out by Corbett, they forgot all about the beautiful long runs made by the Cornellians, and, surging down the sides of the stands they jumped the barriers and were across the gridiron. So many persons got on the field before the police could interfere that it was necessary to stop the game to put every one back of the side lines. It was an eventful finish to an eventful year for Pennsylvania. The crowd seemed to have caught the unrefined feeling.

The Cornellians, expecting a victory, came down from their lofty home in large numbers and made themselves heard at the game. They were always cheering on Cornell, and on occasions presented for even louder demonstrations. The first chance came in the first five minutes play when Coffin circled Pennsylvania's right end. He was splendidly protected and the Quakers were not able to stop him. Coffin started from Cornell's 37-yard line and ran over Pennsylvania's goal. It was a 75-yard run and done so quickly that the ball was planted behind the goal posts almost before Pennsylvania realized what was taking place. The next chance came toward the close of the first half after Pennsylvania had scored six points. Turnbull caught the ball on his own 40-yard line from a corner back kick and dodging the Pennsylvania players placed the ball back of the goal line for the second touchdown.

Cornell's third cause for special cheering happened in the early plays of the second half. Getting the ball on Pennsylvania's 15-yard line after the Quakers had been penalized ten yards for off-side play, Coffin dashed around right end and was over the line before the Pennsylvania players could get to him. He carried the ball 75 yards and scored a touchdown. The team responded by kicking a field goal, making the score 12 to 0.

The Knickerbocker football team defeated the St. John's Institute yesterday afternoon at the Knickerbocker Field, Bayonne, by a score of 11 to 0. The Crescent and Lenox eleven played at Lenox yesterday morning. The former won by the score of 17 to 0. The Seminoles played all around the Cayuga yesterday afternoon. The former won by the score of 17 to 0.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

American stocks were strong in the London market yesterday ruling from 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 per cent. above Wednesday's closing in the New York Stock Exchange. United States Steel preferred was especially strong and in good demand. Rumors of a prospective oil in the price of copper by the Amalgamated Copper Company caused weakness in the copper shares. Money on call in London was firm at 3 1/2 per cent. with futures 3 1/2 per cent. Discounts at the financial centers of Europe were as follows: London, 3 1/2 per cent.; Paris, 13 1/2 per cent.; and Berlin, 2 1/2 per cent.

The Bank of England's weekly statement shows changes as follows: Total reserve decreased, £50,000; circulation increased, £214,000; bullion increased, £157,000; other deposits increased, £1,580,000; notes reserved decreased, £18,000; Government securities unchanged. The proportion of the Bank of England's reserves to liability is 47.91 per cent. Last week it was 47.77 per cent. The rate of discount remains unchanged at 4 per cent.

The Liverpool cotton market yesterday, as indicated by cable advices, was practically unchanged from Wednesday's level. The market remained firm at the recent advance with no additional gain. Spot cotton and futures ruled about the same as for the past few days, and European traders appeared to be waiting for the Washington report on cotton which is due next Tuesday. An increased demand for cotton from China and India is reported in Manchester and in consequence a steadier tone is imparted to cloths and yarns. During the last three months the exports of cotton from America to Europe have amounted to 84,000 bales more than last year. Reports from the South show that more cotton has been negotiated for by consumers than was the case a year ago at this time. In the Liverpool market yesterday the November option on cotton which is due next Tuesday, at 4 1/2-11-12, which was about half a point lower than Wednesday.
